New workstations for students and faculty use in the Library

Do you have to work as a group and hate crouching around one computer in a computer lab? Would you like to practice your power point presentation? We have what you need in the library.

New to the library this year are two collaborative workstations. These workstations allow students and faculty to do many things.

1). Project one desktop computer/laptop on to the TV Monitor so a group can work on one project at the same time.

2) Display up to 4 individual laptop screens at the same time for discussion on projects.

3) Watch DVDs as a group or individually.

4) Both tables have power plugs in the top to charge your laptop or cell phone.

Response from students using these stations has been great! The remote control and instructions are at the circulation desk.

New Whiteboard! Great for those long Calculus and Chemistry equations, not to mention Physics and Art/Architecture classes.

Stress

Want to cope?
Want to relax?
Want to be aware?

There are several helpful ways to cope with stress. One of them is mindfulness. Mindfulness is a mixture of meditation and awareness. If you would like to learn more about mindfulness join us in C164 at Noon on Wednesdays and Thursdays beginning Oct. 23.

Attention December Graduates!
Associate Degree Applications are due October 17!

Are you planning to graduate this semester? Be sure you've met all the requirements. Fill out and turn in the Associates Degree Application. You can schedule an appointment with an advisor in the Academic Success Center to make sure you are set to graduate.